

Teen To Teen

Diane Lamont

It may be the last of them but next time there will be an entire column about the whole group. Jimmy is the drummer and the one whom I think has the greatest smile of all. As you can see in the picture, Chuck Nardelli is in the running too, but that's okay. Chuck. Jean says so! To get on with it HERE IS JINGO!!! written by none other

This week it is my pleasure to present to you the last of "The Effects," Jingo Coulter than Jingo! I was born September 22, 1949 in S. W. Philly. I once thought that I would become a professional baseball player. Then when I discovered the drums I gave up the thought immediately. My first drum was just a snare, the most important one in a set. Then in about a year I acquired my first set of drums and started looking for other boys with instruments to start a group. For the first few months my efforts were fruitless. Then I discovered a group of boys practicing one day with their guitars. I asked them if they had a name and they answered with "The Tensions." "The Tensions" and I were together for about two years, and we had the best instrumental sound in S. W. Philly. I left "The Tensions" who were a great bunch of guys to join another group who seemed to have more of what I wanted in a group. "The Effects" another group from S. W. Philly had the part harmony and the contacts so that with these two ingredients they had half a chance to survive in the savage world of rock combos. I've been with "The Effects" since September and have not regretted joining them at all. Although my hair has grown quite a bit I haven't changed in any other way although some people think so. Now that I am at the ripe old age of seventeen and will soon be starting college I find that I have a lot to learn about life and all of the problems I will face in the future.
